Profound Loss

• Please convey to the American Broadcasting Corporation and the British Broadcasting Corporation our appreciation for the eloquent tributes that were paid to President Kennedy last weekend, and which were carried on the CBC network. I refer to the program That Was The Week That Was, (Sunday, November 24) and the one in which the performing artists of America paid tribute in music and verse. These were among the most moving moments of a tragic weekend.

Thank you also for your coverage of the events surrounding the assassination. We in Canada feel that we lost a member of the family and we appreciated being kept in such close contact with the situation.

—D.R.L., Shaunavon, Sask.

"Unadulterated Trash"

• I protest most vigorously against the bilge emanating from CBC this current season. My wrath is particularly directed to Playdate (Mondays, CBC-TV network) which has subjected its audience to the most unrealistic, unfunny, and unadulterated trash that I have had the misfortune to witness.

Even Festival, which usually can be relied upon to present dramas in good taste, the highlights of the season, succumbed to this current influx of British playwrights, in their presentation of Roots (Wednesday, December 4). If this is the best that country has to offer, Heaven help the British, and may I add, if CBC has arranged to use any more of these types of stories, Heaven help us too . . .

Now that I have thrown my brickbats I will throw a bouquet to such programs as Quest (Tuesdays, CBC-TV network) for their presentation of Kurt Weill (November 26) and The Living Premise. Also Telescope (Fridays, CBC-TV network) which has lived up to its advanced billing.

—Mrs. R.K., Lethbridge.

Festival

• I feel that I must take time out to congratulate the CBC on the superb performance of the Slave of Truth (Wednesday, November 27, CBC-TV network) which I very much enjoyed. The translation was excellent and really breathed the wit and satire of Moliere's work, while the music and lyrics added to the charm and humour of the play. Casting and acting were also excellent.

I do hope that we will be treated to further equally delightful productions on your Festival series.

—A.M.G., Calgary.

Prairie Talks

• On tonight's program Prairie Talks, The First of the Scouts, (November 28, CBC Radio) we enjoyed the talk given by Bill Sellers on his early Scouting days. It was of great interest to us as parents to hear that there are at least four people living in Canada who were a part of the first Scout patrol ever formed. . . .

I am a regular CBC listener and hope we are never deprived of it. . . .

—Mrs. N.N., Winnipeg.

Document

• I would like to congratulate the CBC on the program The Peacemakers (Document, Tuesday, November 26, CBC-TV network) which represents an important beginning of a public analysis of the problems of peace. It is just a beginning but perhaps you should plan a continuation. . . .

—T.W., Winnipeg.

Red River Jamboree

• I have been going to write to say how much I enjoy your program which I watch on Wednesday evenings on CBC-TV. I especially enjoy your wonderful dancers, who are without a doubt the best—just as light as a feather. The four males are just as good as the ladies. I am sure your group must be ballet trained.

I thought you would like to know I am a young lady of 81, and I just loved dancing when I was just a little younger, and now I get my fun watching you. Good Luck.

—Mrs. D.L.F., Keswick, Ont.

Programming

• With regard to television programs I would like to have more ballet, concerts of symphonic music, and of outstanding instrumentalists and singers, and also more drama of a type which is designed not to confuse and shock the viewer. . . .

Short-Course for Farmers on CBC-TV

In an hour each morning, Monday through Friday, January 6-10, farmers in the Prairie Provinces can learn the latest about managing their farms, on THIS BUSINESS OF FARMING

FARMERS THROUGHOUT the Prairie Provinces will have the opportunity the week of January 6 to 10 to learn the latest about farm management, without leaving their own homes. This Business of Farming, an agricultural short-course, will be seen on all CBC affiliated stations in the prairies from Monday to Friday of that week, 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. each day. The series will be produced by the CBC in co-operation with the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta departments of agriculture and the three prairie universities.

The 1964 edition of This Business of Farming will be patterned after the series of television programs produced and telecast in Manitoba in January of 1962 and 1963. The prime objective of the telecasts is to bring to prairie farmers, through television, the latest agricultural information. The 1964 programs will feature expert opinions on agricultural production, as well as farm management principles, and will outline how the modern farmer can best utilize the services and materials available to him.

All three prairie provincial departments of agriculture are interested in promoting greater use of television for agricultural extension programs. This interest was greatly encouraged by the results of a comprehensive audience survey carried out in Manitoba immediately after the first presentation of This Business of Farming in January, 1962. At that time the CBC research department co-ordinated an audience survey that brought forth many interesting aspects that supported the use of television for short courses.

Results of the 1962 survey showed that 63 per cent of the farm operators in Manitoba with television sets watched all or part of the five-day series of programs. High audience interest was maintained throughout the whole series, with an estimated total audience for each of the five days ranging from 19,000 to 23,000 adults.

Course content of this year's series will include soils, forage crop management, and beef cattle production. The fifth and final day of the course will be separate for each province—the Alberta program will feature farm and home management. Saskatchewan viewers will see how to reorganize and improve the farmstead, while the Manitoba program will deal with career guidance.

Co-hosts of the series will be Lionel Moore, Regional Supervisor of the CBC Farm Department, and Professor Clay Gilson, Agricultural Economist, University of Manitoba.

Topic of the Monday, January 6, telecast is Soils and Man. Agricultural experts will tell the effect of climate on land resources, discuss land use in Western Canada, and take a searching look at the value of summerfallowing.

On Tuesday, January 7, Forage for Today is the title. The program will deal with pasture management, the relative value of forage and cereal crops, and other methods of turning a profit through the use of forage.

The Wednesday, January 8, program carries the title, Tomorrow's Beef. Experts discuss cow-calf enterprise, feed resources for the cow herd, and desirable equipment for efficient handling of beef cattle.

On Thursday, January 9, Feeding for Profit is the subject. Discussed are: sources of credit for cattle raisers; the buying of beef breeding stock versus the raising of feeders; setting up the feed lot; and beef marketing.

Friday, January 10, Manitoba viewers will see a program entitled Career Explorations. It reveals the opportunities for rural young people, on or off the farm, and the steps in making career decisions.

On the same day, Saskatchewan stations will carry a program entitled Improved Family Living. It is a

George Bernard Shaw's

MAJOR BARBARA

Frances Hyland, left, as Major Barbara, and Suzanne Grossman are seen Wednesday,
January 8 on FESTIVAL.

HAD GEORGE BERNARD SHAW not been a wonderfully endowed playwright, acute and caustic drama critic, and refreshingly biased music critic, he might well have made a career as a writer of tracts, for few pamphleteers have shown such ability as he to propagandize in a forceful yet sociable manner. It has been said that Shaw's prose is "a model of the art of conducting unfair arguments" and that his skill lay in "the transmuting of disruptive debate into a kind of classical Mozartian music."

Though some of the arguments and causes espoused in his plays are now somewhat dated, his verbal wit is perennially irresistible, whether he is tilting against marriage, God, capitalism, socialism, or just the business of living itself.

Shaw's dazzling language sometimes obscures the fact that his arguments often leave something to be desired; and the frequent and abrupt changes of his own attitudes towards ideas and customs are similarly concealed by the glitter, though they emerge in his habit of talking on both sides of a question, then capping or sinking his own arguments with counter-arguments. Consider, for example, the following two quotations. The first is from a long preface, amounting in length to a separate book, to an edition of Back to Methuselah. It was written in 1921 and revised in 1944. "Our schools," writes Shaw, "teach the morality of feudalism corrupted by commercialism, and hold up the military conqueror, the robber baron, and the profiteer, as models of the illustrious and the successful. In vain do the prophets who see through this imposture preach and teach a better gospel; the individuals whom they convert are doomed to pass away in a few years, and the new generations are dragged back in the schools to the morality of the 15th century."

But in Major Barbara, Shaw puts into the mouth of Andrew Undershaft, the munitions magnate, these words: "If you good people prefer preaching and shirking to buying my weapons and fighting, don't blame me. I can make cannons; I cannot make courage and conviction. . . . (The seven deadly sins are) food, clothing, firing, rent, taxes, respectability and children. Nothing can lift those seven millstones from Man's neck but money; and the spirit cannot soar until the millstones are lifted."

It is Major Barbara that concerns us this week, for the 1905 play is being presented on CBC-TV's Festival on Wednesday, January 8, at 9:30 p.m. Produced by George McCowan, it stars Frances Hyland in the title role, with Gillie Fenwick as her father, Andrew Undershaft; Eric House as Snobby Price; Frank Perry as Adolphus Cusins; Moya Fenwick as Lady Britomart; John Horton as Charles Lomax; Tom Kneebone as Stephen Undershaft; Michael Learned as Sarah, and Ruth Springford as Mrs. Baines.

The principal message of Major Barbara is that poverty is a crime, the root of all evil. Like other of Shaw's plays, there is little story, little action. It is an intellectual circus in which everything depends on the interplay of various types of character and of thought. Undershaft, the kindly and philosophical cannon manufacturer, expounds Shaw's witty sermon; his daughter Barbara is the Salvation Army lass who has to be converted to it, who eventually sheds her uniform when she begins to understand conventional philanthropy. Side issues concern war and "conscience money," but the play's main attack is centred on poverty as the great threat to an orderly and decent society.

Eugene Ionesco throws darts at human bigotry and ignorance
in his play, presented Tuesday, January 7
on QUEST.

BEDLAM GALORE

for Two or More

EVERY SO OFTEN, rambunctious French-Roumanian playwright Eugene Ionesco makes another sortie into the theatre of the absurd, the realm of man at the end of his tether, and raps his audience sharply across the knuckles for making the tether so short that it banishes mystery from life and poetry and deeply-felt meaning from expression. His latest effort to awaken us, a farce called Bedlam Galore, For Two or More, will be presented on CBC-TV's Quest this Tuesday night, January 7, at 10:30 p.m. The translation is by Bernard Frechman. Production is by Mario Prizek.

This time, Ionesco's protagonists are He (played by Jack Creley) and She (played by Norma Renault), who, after 17 years of marriage-gone-sour, are living in considerably less than domestic bliss in an anonymous flat. With savage relentlessness they try to destroy each other with every bit of logic and emotion they can summon up. Suddenly their routine bickering is interrupted by the noises of warfare outside their room, and their private discords are paralleled by the discords in society, invading their private background in the form of grenades and shell splinters spilling through the walls and windows and ricocheting around their room.

The bombardment finally destroys their house. It collapses around them, and one of the nameless armies in the fight wins a victory, celebrates it, and hangs the losers in the attic. And all the while He and She continue their endless, pointless arguments.

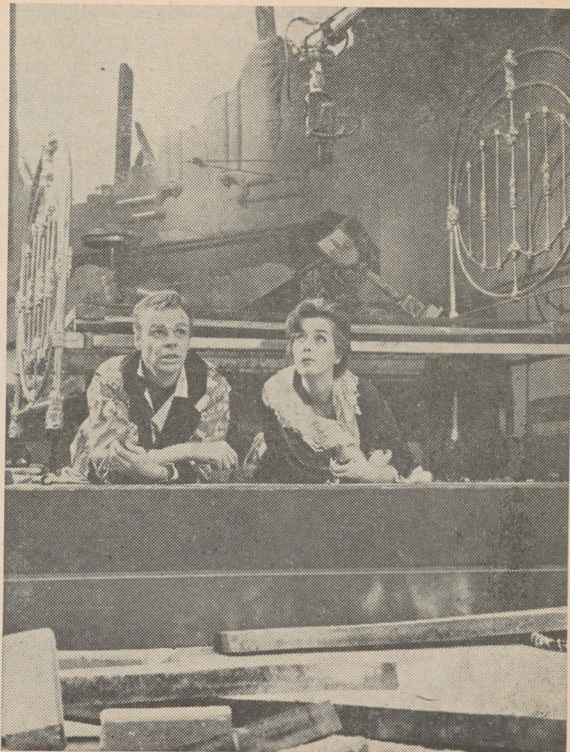

Sets for the production have been designed — and will be methodically destroyed — by Robert Lawson.

A good deal of Ionesco's chastising is aimed at intellectuals, whom he considers to be the most bigoted, ignorant, and blind members of our species. He thinks "they're not in touch with anything. That fact exasperates them. They want power, but no one tells them anything. The psychology of the crowd applies most especially to intellectuals who find in the company of other intellectuals all sorts of alibis for their weaknesses, for their ineffectiveness and their fears."

Ionesco insists emphatically that he is not an intellectual. He's more of a thinker. And he thinks that one of the big problems in the world today is the fact that people are rarely aware of what they're actually saying—they're too foolish or afraid to marshal their ideas and speech, and so they mouth all sorts of idiotic things instead of what they really feel or mean. This way nobody ever really reaches anyone else, and life is a constant, frustrating, floundering-around in jargon.

When Ionesco talks of the difficulties of communicating, he's not excepting himself. He writes, he says, with great difficulty and reluctance, which may come as a surprise to those who think he's always knee-deep in scripts and forever bubbling over with diatribes aimed at the bumbling man-in-the-street. Ionesco once arranged to be locked in his room so he'd have to sit down with a ballpoint pen and some loose-leaf graph paper and grind out another play. But his friends took pity on him and rescued him through a window!

He doesn't mean that he thinks it's impossible for

Alistair Cooke:

THE MAN FROM MID-ATLANTIC

*Tony Thomas turns the tables on journalist-TV host Alistair Cooke, making him subject of an interview Sunday, January 5,
on CBC Radio's PROJECT '64*

IN THE REALM of cultural communication, Alistair Cooke is something of a phenomenon. Besides being a political pundit, critic, host of the TV series Omnibus, and correspondent for The Guardian of Manchester, he is a jazz pianist of considerable ability, and has fallen so deeply in love with the U.S. that he became an American citizen and has been interpreting his adopted country and its people for Britishers for many years, with wit, illumination and persuasiveness. A tall, lean man of 55 with thinning grey hair and hawk-like features, he's a persistent and articulate talker, never tense, hurried or pompous, and seemingly interested and delighted by everything.

Recently freelance broadcaster Tony Thomas cornered the suave Mr. Cooke and recorded a rather unusual interview with him, which CBC Radio's Project '64 presents on Sunday afternoon, January 5, at 5:00 p.m., under the title of The Man From Mid-Atlantic. Getting Cooke to discuss his many interests was easy, but persuading him to talk about himself was most difficult, Thomas reports, so he used Cooke's love of music as a focal point in their discussion. Cooke is heard playing and singing jazz, reminiscing nostalgically about the U.S. as he has seen it, and talking about the world around him.

Born in Manchester, the son of an insurance salesman, Cooke studied English literature at Cambridge, and after graduating stayed on to teach and to edit the university magazine for two years. Then he won a Commonwealth Fellowship on which he studied drama at Yale and Harvard for two years, and found the U.S. "as exciting as a nine-ring circus." "It's supposed to be standardized," he says, "but I find tremendous variations among individual Americans and the life of different regions. Then there's the spoken language, which is always changing and always alive. And there's the American flair for colour—in taste, mood, on the surface and underneath. And the endless fascination of American history, especially Western history."

He settled in the U.S. permanently in 1937, became a citizen, and has been writing about his fellow Americans with unrestrained affection and insight ever since, made all the more effective by his gifts for polished prose and humorous turn of phrase, and for getting right to the heart of the matter. He has crossed the country a score of times, and amazes native-born Americans with his fantastic array of facts and impressions about small towns and little-known customs.

He explains: "If you are a goldfish or if you swim with them long enough, it is impossible to say what are the characteristics of a goldfish. But if somebody slaps a mackerel into a goldfish bowl, you can see at once all sorts of things goldfish have and the other things lack." In telling the British about the Americans, he isn't blind to the faults of their side. He admits that the U.S. is a little too obsessed with bathtubs, and that no Britain would spend 10 minutes talking to a man and call it being "in conference," but is just as quick to point out that Americans "don't believe that whatever is uncomfortable is good for the character."

He Broke Rules to Succeed

David Ogilvy is subject of two programs on THE SIXTIES,
Sundays, January 5 and 12, on CBC-TV

A FORMER CHEF in the Hotel Majestic in Paris, who once sold stoves door-to-door in Scotland, and ran a tobacco farm in Pennsylvania, has parlayed a $6,000 shoestring advertising agency into a $59 million dollar business in 14 years by breaking most of the rules for how to succeed in the ad game.

In two programs to be seen on Sundays, January 5 and 12, at 5:00 p.m., CBC-TV's The Sixties takes a look at this renegade Englishman, David Mackenzie Ogilvy, whom Time magazine calls "the most sought-after wizard in the advertising business today."

The first interview with Ogilvy will reveal how he got started in the ad game, and how he has made an extraordinary success of it. In the second, he offers his unorthodox views on advertising.

"If I had behaved in a more professional way," he says in his best-selling book, Confessions of An Advertising Man, "it would have taken me 20 years to arrive. I had neither the time nor the money to wait. I was poor, unknown, and in a hurry."

He was born in 1911 in West Horsley, England, studied at Fettes College in Edinburgh, and flunked out of Christ Church, Oxford, after which he settled down in the kitchens of the Majestic, where his greatest thrill was "watching the President of France eating a souffle I'd cooked. He died a week later."

Shortly after that, though not because of it, Ogilvy took off his chef's hat and went to Scotland to sell stoves, and to develop his ideas about selling—giving the potential

CBXT—En France

Arrival at Orly. As the tourists arrive at the Paris Airport, Dawn Addams, our hostess and interpreter, explains that we will follow John throughout his first visit to France. However she will always be with us to help explain the French situations we are watching.

CBC Championship Golf

This is the beginning of the first-round matches, with the eight qualifying golfers competing. Seen in this round are Peter Hildrop meeting Billy Wright on the Jasper Park Golf Course. Steve Douglas is commentator.

Cross Canada Curling

Host Don Wittman. Played at the Rossmere Golf and Country Club in Winnipeg. This is the third of 12 consecutive matches to determine a champion. Alberta Skip Jimmy Shields meets British Columbia Skip Glen Harper.

CBWT—University Basketball

The University of Manitoba vs. Jamestown College, North Dakota, played at the University of Manitoba Field House, with Bob Moir and Don Wittman as commentators. This is the first of a series of four intervarsity basketball games to be telecast during January and February. George Kent, producer.

Forest Rangers

The Beaver. A small forest fire starts, and the Rangers investigate why it started.

Countrytime

1. Australian Agricultural Production, 1963. A look at agriculture on the world's driest continent. It includes sheep, cattle, wheat growing, fishing, banana and pineapple growing.

2. Stan Westaway talks about seeds that may be sown very early and the methods for sowing them.

Gren Bates, producer.

Ski School

First of a series of four lessons on skiing, with two of Canada's top experts, Real Charette and Lucile Wheeler.

CBXT—Journey of a Lifetime

How to Ski In Four Lessons

FOR THOSE who can't tell a gelandesprung from a sitzmark, but would like to learn, preferably without breaking a few arms or legs by trying "do-it-yourself" skiing, CBC Television comes up with an answer. Real Charette and Lucile Wheeler, two of Canada's top ski experts, will provide instruction for novice and would-be skiers on fundamentals of the sport, on Ski School, a short series to be seen on CBC-TV this month. The four Jerusalem's water supply during a siege by the Assyrians.

NHL Hockey

Bill Hewitt reports from the Maple Leaf Gardens as the Toronto Maple Leafs play the Chicago Black Hawks.

The Saint

Simon Templar visits Buenos Aires, and immediately becomes involved in a robbery plot, which almost costs him his life.

filmed programs will be presented on consecutive Saturdays, beginning January 4, at 6:30 p.m.

Filmed at Banff, the programs will cover all aspects of skiing that can be taught without the student actually fastening the ski harness. Slow motion will be used frequently throughout the series to illustrate proper techniques. The instruction will range from advice on proper clothing and equipment, through such basics as how to walk wearing skis and how to climb hills, on to more advanced manoeuvres. Commentary will be given by sportscaster Doug Smith.

Real Charette, of Ste. Agathe, Que., has been director of one of the largest ski schools in Canada, Snow Eagle School in the Laurentians. Lucile Wheeler was the first Canadian to win the world ski title, at Cortina, Italy, in 1958.

Ski School was first seen on the CBC's French-language television network, and was shown on the English-language TV network in January, 1963. Produced for the CBC by Douglas Sinclair, the filmed series won a Blue Ribbon Award from the American Film Library Association as the best educational sports film of the year in which it was produced.

Ski experts Real Charette and Lucile Wheeler present the first of four lessons on the sport Saturday.

Program Notes

JANUARY 5

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

CBXT-Adventure

Sixty-Five Survivors. One of the few places on earth still unexplored is a huge area of tropical forest about the size of Great Britain, around the Xingu River in the heart of the Amazon Forest. It is the last refuge of the Indian tribes of Brazil, and this unique film shows one of the few remaining tribes, the Suja people. This tribe has been reduced to a mere 65 people.

Speaking French

This series returns for its ninth season with Professor Jean-Paul Vinay and Rena Berzin. A new regular this season will be CBC French network star Jacques Zouvi. He will be seen each week in a variety of comic guises and will speak only French. As in the past, Speaking French will emphasize the conversational side of the language, and the participants conjure up comic situations to stimulate the interest of the audience.

This week's lesson revolves around situations which in real life depend on question-and-answer techniques. Jacques Zouvi is featured in the role of a vacuum cleaner salesman.

Keynotes

Featuring Edmonton musical stars Tommy Banks, Harry Boon, and Dorothy Harpell.

Tommy on piano and Harry on organ play:

Love Is a Many-Splendoured Thing
Green Dolphin Street
Eso Beso

Dorothy sings:
Fly to the Moon
So Lucky to Be Me
Let There Be Love

The Outdoorsman

A program for the outdoorsman which looks at the various aspects of outdoor life: camping, hunting, fishing, boating and so forth.

Country Calendar

Mitchell Ranch Co. Ltd., of Battle Creek, Sask. Jim and Ben Mitchell talk with Dave Innes about their 47,000 acre ranch which is six miles wide and 12 miles long. Three brothers and their families run this business which has close to 1,200 cattle.

Film taken on the ranch shows cowboys busy cutting out cattle from the herd and also a cattle drive. Distance makes regular phone lines an expensive proposition so the Mitchells have improvised their own phone wires by hooking up to the fences, and it is interesting to note that they have 100 miles of fence lines on their ranch.

Gren Bates, producer.

Time of Your Life

Host Peter Kastner introduces the first of a new 26-week series for young people. These hour-long sessions will be held at The Place, where young people have fun doing things. They dance and sing as well as discuss themselves and the world around them. They have the time of their lives presenting plays and satirical sketches.

The show will include:

1. Peter Kastner and the gang in folk songs.

2. A discussion on keeping a balance between brainwork and exercise.

3. Dance exercises.

4. Wendy Gladstone sings She's A Fool and is auditioned by a big-time record promoter.

5. Paul Hoffert and his jazz group play Cedar Waltz.

6. Peter Kastner shows the kids how to find out what Shakespeare means in a scene from Macbeth.

7. Brian Foley and his dancers do a Russian dance.

8. The kids discuss whether it is proper to first-name adults.

9. Peter Kastner, Wayne Murphy, Wayne Thompson, Rena Jackson, and Marilou Green present satirical sketches based on news items.

Heritage

A re-creation of a Methodist Prairie Camp Meeting at the turn of the century, with hymns and sermon. Featuring James Duncan and Florence Faiers, with soloists Roy Petty, Paul Fredette, and 11-year-old Colin Holbrow. Produced by Perry Rosemond.

Journey to the Centre

A dramatized documentary showing the Holy Land and the places associated with the earthly life of Christ. (Repeat of the Christmas Day show.)

The Twentieth Century

A detailed two-part report on the five attempts to assassinate Adolf Hitler. Today the documentary covers the plot to kill Hitler on November 8, 1939, in a Munich, Germany, beer hall. Interviewed will be Albert Eckenbrecht, a German broadcasting technician who was at the scene, and R. H. Stevens, a former British Intelligence Officer, who was kidnapped by the Nazis, and was later charged with instigating the beer hall bomb plot.

The Sixties

A profile of David Ogilvy, advertising wizard who is considered a symbol of this decade.

Some of Those Days

1917. This was the year when the United States joined the Allies in World War 1. Film and photographs show President Wilson reviewing some doughboys and the Americans arriving in Europe.

Featuring regulars Lorraine McAllister, Roma Hearn, Betty Halker, Barney Potts, Pat Morgan, and Harry Price and his orchestra. Host is Bill Bellman. Guest is Ross Laidley.

A Bachelor Gay am I Ross
Roses of Picardy Thora Anders
Till the Clouds
Roll By Roma and Pat

My Three Sons

Mike Douglas takes it upon himself to rescue his father when he believes Steve is about to be trapped into a marriage to a much younger woman.

Hazel

Hazel tries her hand at match-making, but the prospective bridegroom manages to evade Cupid's arrows.

Flashback

Panelists Maggie Morris, Alan Millar, Allan Manings and a guest panelist attempt to identify famous persons, objects and fads of the past. Moderator is Bill Walker.

Ed Sullivan Show

Ed's special guest is Sister Luc-Gabrielle, the singing nun, whose single recording of Dominique is currently one of the major song hits in North America.

Bonanza

The Lila Conrad Story. A frontier judge attempts to reform a fallen dance-hall girl, only to discover a flaw in his own character.

Prime Minister Pearson

An address to the nation by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

CBWT-Desilu Playhouse

Bernadette. The inspiring story of the miracle of a child's faith. This hour-long classic is based on the events at Lourdes, France in 1858 when 14-year-old Bernadette Soubirous was instructed by a vision to tell the world of the healing powers of the spring waters of the city.

Program Notes

JANUARY 6

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

National Educational Television

Getting Off the Earth. This program inquires into the history and present status of man's dream of getting off the earth. Early attempts at and progress in flying are reviewed and illustrated. Possible sources of energy for flight are explored. The need for an atmosphere for conventional flight is outlined, and existing and proposed ways of eliminating the need for an atmosphere presented. Proposed sources for space travel energy are surveyed.

Alberta Schools Telecast

See for Yourself: What is a Living Camera? Host and teacher-scientist is Dr. Seymour Trieger, associate professor of Education at the University of Alberta. The purpose of the program is to investigate the processes of seeing, by comparing the human eye with the camera.

This Business of Farming

First of a five-day short-course on farming, to be seen this week on Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta stations.

Today, Soils and Man. The effect of climate on land, the use of land in Western Canada, and a searching look at the value of summerfallowing.

Co-hosts are Lionel Moore, regional supervisor of the CBC farm department, and Prof. Clay Gilson, agricultural economist of the University of Manitoba.

Participants are Bob Wallace, soils and crops branch, Manitoba department of agriculture and conservation; Earl Johnson, plant industry branch, Saskatchewan department of agriculture; and Adolph Goettel, field crops branch, Alberta department of agriculture.

CBXT—Gale Storm

Susanna becomes the first person in the West Indies ever to break into jail, which is the only way she can get to see Nugey, who is being held a prisoner.

Ladies First

1. Gerdine Crawford shares pointers on the art of choosing and measuring patterns, particularly for skirts.

2. Home economist Ruth Dyker brings information and advice of interest to consumers.

Password

Allen Ludden is host of a word association game show, in which two teams made up of a celebrity guest and a partner chosen from the studio audience try to guess enough passwords to beat their opponents.

CBXT—Kerry Wood Storybook

An Inlay Hobby. Today we are at the hobby bench again, and Kerry shows us how to make wood inlay designs on tables, cupboards, lamps, clocks and other items.

Razzle Dazzle

This week's presentation of the Turtleshell Theatre is Robinson Caruzzo. Richard the Lion tries to settle his hair problem. The Forest Rangers start another new adventure.

Time Out for Music

Features Florence Faiers, Reg Gibson, Marilyn Boyle, and Bobby Grif-fith. Produced by Don Williams.

This is a revue-style show with a light flavour of music and comedy. The theme is Man and Woman, and the numbers will include:

Hey Look Me Over
It's a Woman's World
My Kind of Girl
I Enjoy Being a Girl
Maria Elena
There Is Nothing Like a Dame
I Hate Men
Someone to Watch Over Me
Guys and Dolls

CBWT—Reach for the Top

The teams competing this week are the St. Joseph's Collegiate from Provencher and the Morden-Winkler Collegiate. Producer, Jean Mackay.

CBXT—Sports Page

A weekly half-hour devoted to sports activities of interest to Edmontonians, with sportscaster Glenn Bjarnason. The Keen Ice Curling series continues with the fourth game between Mat Baldwin and Mel Watshorn. Producer, Dave Smiley.

Don Messer's Jubilee

This week's special guests are singer Margo Grenell, and stepdancer Charlie Richards.

The French Song.....Margo Grenell
My French-Canadian Girl.....Charlie Chamberlain
Jolie Jacqueline.....Marg Osburne

The Garry Moore Show

Garry's guests include comedian Alan King and dancer Gwen Verdon.

Playdate

Playdate presents the Red Skelton Hour. Details of the show are to be announced.

Inquiry

A report on topics of national interest, and international topics relevant to Canada. Host is Laurier LaPierre.

Explorations

John Cabot, Man of the Renaissance. A film study of the Venetian explorer. Shows the atmosphere of eagerness which prevailed in the 15th century as the Europeans of that day dreamed of a westward passage to the Orient. John Vernon appears as Cabot and Powys Thomas as Henry VII. Ivor Barry plays the Lord Chamberlain of England whose poor gambling spirit gave the Spaniards the advantage of a first landing in America. The writer and director is Morten Parker.

CBXT—Thriller

Wax Works. Boris Karloff turns to the eerie setting of a wax museum for a series of four murders, all master-minded by the operator of the wax-works.

Participating today are R. E. McKenzie, director of the plant industry branch, Saskatchewan agriculture department; Orlen Bratvold, forage crop specialist with the Alberta agriculture department; Jim Campbell, forage crop specialist with the Manitoba agriculture department; and W. E. Johnson, soils specialist with the Saskatchewan agriculture department.

CBXT—Gale Storm

Susanna saves the life of a young Chinese gentleman, and according to the customs of his race, winds up with a servant to follow her everywhere.

CBWT—Gale Storm

Susanna delves into the sublime to put across a young composer's pop song to a recording executive.

CBXT—Love That Bob

Bob gives his nephew Chuck the benefit of his vast experience in enacting Chuck's love scenes in the high school play.

Ladies First

1. Co-hosts Jo Everett and Ernie Poscente present a special program to mark the celebration of the Ukrainian Christmas.

2. Jo interviews Irene Ng and Susan Davies on the subject of ballet. Producer, Gloria Germain.

Friendly Giant

Friendly, Rusty, and Jerome are at the farm. They hear barking, and think that it may come from hunting dogs.

Misterogers

Mr. Zoogles comes to the neighbourhood. He stops to see Mrs. Frog, the new curator of the museum.

Fireball XL-5

Steve, Venus, and Professor Matic set off for a vacation on Planet Olympus. Their vacation plans are curtailed when they become involved in a deadly feud between the ruler of Olympus and its neighbouring planet, Kemble.

Razzle Dazzle

Razzle Dazzle Alley will not be the same after Helpful Hattie's Efficiency Service goes into action.

Come Listen Awhile

Features regulars Bud Spencer and George Calangis and his orchestra, with singer Pat Trudell. The special guest is Eleanor Collins.

CBXT—An Age of Kings

The Dangerous Brother. (Richard III, Acts 1, 2, and 3.) Richard of Gloucester arranges for his brother George of Clarence, to be committed to the Tower where he is drowned in a wine barrel. The shocking news proves fatal to the sick Edward IV, and his elder boy succeeds him as Edward V. A struggle for control of the young King ensues.

Ben Casey

I'll Get on My Ice-Floe and Wave Goodbye. Ben Casey is confronted by a stubborn elderly patient, hospitalized for what apparently is a stroke, who refuses to identify himself to the Social Services Department, because of an abiding fear that he may be a burden to his family. Starring Charlie Ruggles as the guest actor.

Front Page Challenge

Panelists Betty Kennedy, Gordon Sinclair, Pierre Berton, and guest panelist Pat Pearce, Montreal television critic, try to identify newspaper headlines associated with challengers. Moderator is Fred Davis.

CBC Newsmagazine

Highlights of Pope Paul VI's unprecedented three day visit to the Holy Land. Includes coverage of his stay in Jerusalem, his visit to Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee, and his visit to and speech at Bethlehem. Morley Safer reports.

Quest

Bedlam Galore, For Two or More. A farce by Eugene Ionesco, the ram-bunctious French-Roumanian exponent of the "theatre of the absurd." This is the most recent "anti-play" by the author of The Bald Soprano, The Chairs and Rhinoceros.

"He", played by Jack Creley, and "She", played by Norma Renault, live in something less than domestic bliss in an anonymous flat. Their routine bickering is interrupted by noises of warfare. The house is bombarded, collapses around them, one or other of the nameless armies wins a victory, celebrates it, and hangs the losers in the attic, while He and She carry on with their endless, circular argument.

Setting designed and methodically destroyed by Robert Lawson. Producer, Mario Prizek. Translated by Bernard Frechtman.

East Side, West Side

George C. Scott stars as social worker Neil Brock.

Program Notes

JANUARY 8

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

Western School Telecasts

Preserving the Past. (Grades 4-8). First of four telecasts based on museums or buildings of historic interest found in the four western provinces. By examining objects and sites, some of the activities that took place during the early years are re-created.

The Haida Indians. From British Columbia, the story of the Haida Indian totem poles, rescued from the destructive forces of man and nature by a group of men interested in having them preserved. The telecast shows where the totems once stood, and something of the life and culture of the Haida, as well as depicting the expedition to Anthony Island to rescue the totems.

This Business of Farming

Third of a five-day farming short-course, seen this week on stations in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Today, Tomorrow's Beef. Subjects covered are cow-calf enterprise, feed resources for the cow herd, and equipment for efficient handling of beef cattle.

Program Notes

JANUARY 9

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

National School Telecasts

Canadian Explorers. Beginning a series of half-hour programs describing the efforts and achievements of explorers who have played a major role in Canadian history.

Today, John Cabot. Cabot was a man of the Renaissance, restless, ambitious, and daring. Shows the character of the man and of his age.

This Business of Farming

Fourth of a five-part farming short-course seen this week on stations in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Today, Feeding for a profit. Subjects include sources of credit; beef cattle buying versus raising feeders; setting up the feedlot; and beef marketing.

Participants are Glen Purnell, agricultural economist with the Alberta agriculture department; Stewart Hatch, manager of Lethbridge Central Feeders; Chas. E. Goode, animal industry branch, Saskatchewan agriculture department; Dr. E. W. Stringham, faculty of agriculture, University of Manitoba; Dr. J. W. O'Donoghue, livestock branch, Alberta agriculture department; and Prof. Art Wood, agricultural economist, University of Manitoba. Co-hosts are Lionel Moore, CBC farms supervisor for the Prairies, and Prof. Clay Gilson, University of Manitoba agricultural economist.

CBXT—Gale Storm

Susanna playfully dictates a letter to Nugy, who takes up typing for self-improvement, and through the content of the letter there follows a series of comical events.

CBWT—Gale Storm

This musical episode presents a comedy tinged with poignancy, and in it Gale sings South of the Border.

CBXT—Love That Bob

To escape what he believes to be a matrimonial trap with one girl, Bob pretends to be engaged to another, and almost sees the end of bachelorhood.

Ladies First

Co-hosts Jo Everett and Ernie Poscente welcome June Sheppard to the show for a book review; and Ernie takes viewers for a visit to the Jubilee Auditorium. Produced by Gloria Germain.

Razzle Dazzle

Michele and Howard are joined by Wizzy and Sherlock. Another game of play-a-long is played and Howard has a secret message decoder.

CBWT—Biography

George Bernard Shaw. As a playwright, George Bernard Shaw created many intriguing characters, but the most remarkable was his own. Shaw claimed to be a philosopher, novelist, socialist, statesman, dramatist, theologian, Irishman, vegetarian, fanatic and fluent liar.

Biography relates the fascinating life of one of the most celebrated and greatest playwrights of his time.

CBXT—Citizen James

English comedian Sydney James, a former so-star with Tony Hancock, goes solo with his own particular brand of slap-stick comedy.

The Lucy Show

Lucy Goes to Art Class. Lucy and Viv become "friendly" rivals for attention from a handsome would-be artist.

The Serial

The Wings of Night, Episode 6. Neil has fled Oak Falls to think things out in the woods. Steve Quarrender, on a hunting trip with his Indian guide, Saul, arrives unexpectedly at the camp where Neil and Johnny Brant are staying. Neil and Steve have a showdown over Louise. During a hunting expedition next day, tragedy strikes.

Cast: James Doohan as Neil; Jeremy Wilkin as Steve; Eric Clavering as Johnny Brant; Michael Zenon as Saul.

Parade

The Light Look. Guests are singers Shirley Harmer and Allan Blye. They sing songs about light, including I'm Beginning to See the Light, and London by Night. Carlu Carter makes a guest appearance and dances to Night Train.

CBWT—Thriller

The Story of An Attractive Family. Marian Farrington honeymoon with her husband George Drake at a New England lake. The honeymoon turns into murder, motivated by a $40,000 insurance policy.

CBXT—An Age of Kings

The Dangerous Brother. (Richard III, Acts 1, 2, and 3.) Richard of Gloucester arranges for his brother, George of Clarence, to be committed to the Tower where he is drowned in a wine barrel. The shocking news proves fatal to the sick Edward IV and his elder boy succeeds him as Edward V. A struggle for the custody of the young King ensues. This is a repeat of Tuesday night's episode.

11:00 a.m.—Matinee Highlights

1. Retirement—Rocking Chair or Golf Course? Jean Hinds describes her personal views on what people should do when they reach retirement age.

2. Betty Shapiro interviews Mrs. Harold Shapiro (herself) on the subject of pipe smoking for women.

3. Lloyd MacInnis interviews Dr. Stanley Rudin, an American psychologist lecturing at Dalhousie University in Nova Scotia. He comments on the provocative statements he made recently at the International Convention of Psychologists in Washington.

2:00 p.m.—Metropolitan Opera

Faust, by Charles Gounod, founded upon Goethe's tragedy.

CAST: Faust—tenor Barry Morel; Mephistopheles—bass Cesare Siepi; Marguerite—soprano Anna Moffo; Siebel—soprano Janis Martin; conducted by Fausto Cleva.

Act I. Faust's study. In despair at completely solving the secrets of science, Faust is about to take poison, but desists on hearing Easter carols. However, he calls on Satan, who shows him a vision of Marguerite, whereupon the old man sells Satan his soul in exchange for transformation into a young man.

Act II. Before the city gate. Students sing, as it is a Festival day. Valentin arrives and gazes upon his sister's picture. Siebel promises to protect Valentin's sister while the soldier is in the field. Mephistopheles, mingling with the students, prophesies to Siebel that never again will he carry a bouquet to Marguerite, as all the flowers he touches will fade. Valentin with his friends attacks the jeering Mephistopheles, but the Fiend draws a magic circle around himself that fends off their weapons. The people return and dance. Faust offers his arm as escort to the blushing Marguerite, but is refused.

Act III. Marguerite's garden. Siebel picks a bouquet for Marguerite, but the flowers fade. Then he dips his hands into holy water, and through this expedient is able to place this offering at Marguerite's door. Faust and Mephistopheles appear, and the latter leaves a casket of jewels at Marguerite's door, then departs with Faust. When Marguerite discovers the jewels, she is dazzled by them and in delight adorns herself. Martha appears, then Faust with Mephistopheles. Faust declares his love to Marguerite, and she loses her heart to him.

Act IV. A street. The soldiers return from war. Valentin enters his house. Mephisto arrives with Faust and scoffingly serenades Marguerite. Valentin rushes out of the house and is stabbed by Faust in a duel which ensues. The people assemble in excitement. Marguerite sorrowfully bends over the dying Valentin, who curses her as a wanton.

Act V. The Walpurgis revel, and Mephisto takes Faust to join them, but when Marguerite's image appears, Faust orders Satan to convey him to his beloved. (This scene may be omitted.)

Change of scene: Marguerite in prison, having become insane. Faust, trying to

Music:

A Developer, Not a Pioneer

A WORK COMMISSIONED by the CBC from Montreal composer Kelsey Jones — Prelude, Fuguetta and Finale, for harpsichord, violin and 'cello—will be given its first performance by the Hugh McLean Consort of Vancouver on CBC Sunday Night, January 5, at 10:35 on radio.

Dr. Jones, born in 1922 in South Norwalk, Connecticut, has lived in Canada since 1945 and is a Canadian citizen. Apart from his work as a composer, harpsichordist with the Baroque Trio, and pianist, he teaches counterpoint, fugue, harmony, history, analysis, and the harpsichord in the Faculty of Music at McGill University.

"I became conscious of music quite early in life," Jones recalls, "or I should say my parents did, when they saw me tapping with a knife and fork, keeping time with the radio, and I was given over right away to a piano teacher."

While attending Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., Jones began to study composition, harmony and counterpoint with Harold Hamer, who recognized his young pupil's ability and suggested he concentrate on composing.

He taught at Mount Allison and conducted the college orchestra, studied in Toronto with Dr. Healey Willan, Sir Ernest MacMillan and Leo Smith, and in Paris with Nadia Boulanger, and received his doctorate in Toronto in 1951. He conducted the Saint John Symphony Orchestra for four years, and composed his first symphonic work for it.

"My attitude to composition isn't that of a pioneer," he says. "I don't aim to startle the world by writing in the extreme, or to create new 'effects.' In the necessary attempt to break down the traditions of the past, many new and wonderfully exciting innovations have been made. Many of these have not been fully developed, to my way of thinking. That's where my interest as a composer lies."

Bridge Tips From the Experts

STARTING ON Saturday, January 4, on CBC Radio at 6:15 p.m. (9:15 p.m. on CBX), Let's Play Bridge will offer weekly tips from world experts and a discussion of the game. Host will be Neil LeRoy. Each week he'll interview top national and international bridge stars about phases of the game, beginning on the first two programs with Bruce Gowdy, a Toronto Life Master, the highest rating in the bridge world.

Guest on the January 18 program will be Eric Murray, a leading Canadian bridge player, who has over 4,500 Master points. He will be a member of the Canadian team playing in the World Olympiads in New York in May.

The January 25 guest will be Life Master Sam Gold, another member of the Canadian Olympiads team and the second Canadian to become a Life Master, who operates the Linton Bridge Club in Montreal.

Later guests include Mrs. Joyce Phillips, Toronto's most recent Life Master, and Charles H. Goren, world's foremost bridge authority.

Naval Battle On Lake Erie

ONE OF THE most significant and desperate naval engagements of the War of 1812 was fought by deep water men in the shallow fresh water of Lake Erie. The Americans had been doing pretty well at sea, but the war in the west had reached a stalemate, and they were in grave danger of losing their western territory unless they could depend on using British-held Lake Erie as a highway for supplies and troops.

And so young Admiral Perry came hunting for the British with a fleet of jerry-built ships. He found what he was looking for off Put-in-Bay on South Bass Island—five makeshift men-of-war commanded by a brisk young Scottish Regular Navy officer, Captain Robert H. Barclay. A gentle little breeze drew the ships together in a three-hour engagement that went badly for Perry at first but ended with the fall of the British flags, the wounding of Captain Barclay, and the changing of the whole complexion of the war in the west.

The story of the preparation of the five gallant little ships, the men who trekked from Halifax on foot to man them, the charming, attractive and willful widow who strongly influenced their fate on the inland sea, and the aftermath of the engagement, is told with excitement, humour and deep understanding of ships and sailors, in His Majesty's Five, a new radio drama by Joseph Schull which J. Frank Willis will produce on CBC Sunday Night, January 5, at 8:30 p.m.

presentation on the principles of farmstead improvement, ways of beautifying the farmstead, and an outline of the methods of improving the farm home for greater efficiency.

Friday's program on Alberta stations will deal with Farm and Home Management—Providing a Profitable and Satisfactory Farm Income. The program shows how several farm families in the Olds district of Central Alberta have built up their farms and improved their financial returns through an improved management program, developed as members of a farm and home management association. Through this association, they have learned the value of farm records in permitting wise management decisions, and have become acquainted with the assistance available to them through their district home economists and agriculturists.

The names of the experts appearing on each program are published on the program notes pages of this issue.

BROKE RULES TO SUCCEED

customer all the information he could about the product so that in the end it sold itself. He tried his hand at tobacco farming, became associate director of the Gallup Audience Research Institute at Princeton, and served during the Second World War in the British security and diplomatic services.

In 1948 he decided to have a fling at advertising, and it wasn't long before his bold approach to the job was raising eyebrows. "A good advertisement is one which sells the product without drawing attention to itself," he insists, and relies on basic, old-fashioned rules of advertising. "The two most powerful words you can use in a headline are free and new. You can seldom use free, but you can always use new—if you try hard enough. . . .

His best-known successes are probably a well-shirted gentleman with a patched eye, a bearded Commander drinking tonic water, and a luxury limousine so silent that "At Sixty Miles an Hour the Loudest Noise Comes from the Electric Clock."

BEDLAM GALORE FOR TWO OR MORE

humans to communicate. "This is one of the most idiotic fashionable phrases," he says. "Communication is not only possible, it is easy, sometimes even too easy. What I'm concerned about is that people are too lazy, too indolent to make the effort to communicate; that the tools of communication, language, have been allowed to fossilize into clichés and have lost the power to serve as instruments for genuine communication. Mind you, I also think that there can be too much communication. At times one does not want to be compelled to communicate. Solitude is sometimes a necessary and very agreeable state to be in.

"I am convinced that if we make the effort required we can communicate with any human being, however different his background or his cultural environment may be. But it does require a real effort to make contact, real human sympathy, real sincerity and imagination. That is why I am suspicious of all conformisms, all ready-made formulas. They come between human beings and make communication more difficult by substituting dead slogans for genuine human utterance. . . . By being ruthlessly frank about our own feelings and obsessions we can achieve real communication, and so the most personal and most private can also be the most genuinely social, collective matter, because it may help other people to deal with their own private fears and obsessions."

Ionesco was born in Roumania 51 years ago but has lived in Paris since early childhood, so French is his second language. His English is almost non-existent, but he loves London, because he finds it kind and comfortable. He has visited it often, as well as other European capitals, because he likes to follow his plays around and tell off critics and producers when they don't please him.

Although he can be quite shy at times, he adores putting on an act, the more macabre the better, and thinks nothing of lunging into a room as a hanged man with his tongue lolling out. A few years ago, during the intermission at Collins Music Hall in London, he raised a few eyebrows by prancing around the bar as a matador, using his program as a cape to tease his friend, who was advancing menacingly as the bull. "Who do you think you are, Australians?" demanded a shocked usherette. And ever since, when Ionesco indulges in a mood of fantasy, he explains it away with: "Je suis Australien!"

Composers Invited To Enter Competition

EVERY TWO YEARS, the Grand Prix of La Communauté radio-phonique des programmes de langue française is offered by the national French-language radio networks of France, Belgium, Switzerland and Canada for a musical work with integral text for voice, written especially for radio.

The first Canadian entry in this biennial competition was submitted by the CBC in the spring of 1963. The work was Pierre Mercure's Psaume pour abri, a cantata for soloist, choirs, orchestra, percussion and electronic instruments. It did not, however, win the Grand Prix,

Music on Radio

7:35 p.m.—Recital in Miniature

Seventeenth century musical forms and mid-19th century modes of musical expression are represented in the main work to be featured by pianist Snjolaug Sigurdson. Made up of a prelude, chorale and fugue, this work achieves an organic type of unity that was completely new for this time, in that the themes linking the prelude, chorale, and fugue form a cycle through the forms with the final fugue using all the themes in the preceding musical forms. Produced by Benjamin Horch.

which was finally awarded jointly to Swiss and French entrants.

The 1965 Grand Prix competition, for the Prix Paul Gibson, is now open and Canadian composers are invited to participate by submitting their manuscripts to the CBC. The closing date for such submissions is May 31, 1964, and on that date Canadian entries will be delivered to a three-man jury selected by the Corporation. The Canadian work judged the best will then be recorded by the CBC and entered in the final competition for the Prix Paul Gibson, which has a cash value equivalent to 10,000 Swiss francs, or approximately $2,500.

Composers wishing to take part should note that the prize-winning work will be broadcast on French-language radio. Consequently, texts must be in French and translations from other languages cannot be accepted. Works should be of 30 to 60 minutes' duration.

Since they are created specifically for radio, works may feature any sound effects or arrangements the composers desire, such as, for example, those achieved electronically by Pierre Mercure in his Psaume pour abri.

For what the CBC hopes will be a large number of Canadian composers wishing to participate, complete rules for the Grand Prix competition are available from: Mr. Roy Royal, Director of Musical Programs (French Network), CBC, Box 6000, Montreal, P.Q.

New Series On CBC-TV's Heritage

CBC TELEVISION'S religious series, Heritage, begins a new series of 13 programs on Sunday, January 5, and moves to a new time: 3:00 p.m. The programs will include studies of Church attitudes towards some contemporary customs and problems, profiles of religious leaders, and programs on the history of the Church in Canada.

The January 5 telecast, which originates in Winnipeg, will recall the days of old-time camp meetings in the Prairies, through narration and music of the period. A similar historical program will be seen January 26, when CBC Halifax presents a story of how the Church came to St. John River.

Profiles of two leading churchmen, a Roman Catholic and a Presbyterian, will be presented on February 9 and 16, and a study of the life and work of the Sisters of Charity, a Roman Catholic order, will be seen on February 23.

A discussion of Church attitudes to health insurance, including statements from religious leaders on the subject will be telecast January 12, under the title My Brother's Keeper. Later in the season similar programs will deal with credit buying, the treatment of Canada's Indians, and the use of liquor.

The Great Slave Lake Railroad

Dave Cruickshank

Connecting Peace River and Pine Point on Great Slave Lake, this 437-mile ribbon of steel is more than half completed. Dave Cruickshank visits the construction site to interview the early pioneers, and the latter-day ones blazing this new road.

Explorations and National Schools

Begin Series On Canada's Explorers

THE FIRST commercial traveller to drop in on Canada was John Cabot, a man who had done business in Mecca and was anxious to get back there by the shortest possible route. That was in 1497, at the height of a historical period marked by restless searches for new horizons in both the spiritual and physical worlds.

A dramatized film study of the stubborn Venetian adventurer-explorer-businessman who made the first officially recorded visit to what is now Canada will be presented on CBC Television this week under the title John Cabot, Man of the Renaissance. It is the first in a series of programs about Canadian explorers, to be seen on two separate CBC-TV program series. The Cabot film will be shown on Explorations, Monday, January 6, at 10:30 p.m.; and on National School Telecasts, Thursday, January 9, at 10:00 a.m. Other explorers to be covered in the school series are Samuel de Champlain, Alexander Mackenzie, Simon Fraser and David Thompson. Explorations will deal with only three: Cabot, January 6; Thompson, January 13; and Mackenzie, January 20. Four of the programs were produced by the National Film Board. The Simon Fraser film is a CBC production.

In Cabot's time, Mecca was a focal point for business as well as religion, and was the biggest market for east-west trade. So, when Cabot transferred his base of operations from Venice to England, it was the Bristol merchants who received him most warmly, recognizing him as a fellow businessman.

In the film, written and directed by Morton Parker, John Vernon appears as Cabot, and Powys Thomas as Henry VII.

The Steinbach Treble Teens, a choir of charming young ladies, is heard Thursday at 10:05 p.m. on Parade of Choirs. Inset is their leader, Shirley Penner. The group, started as a church choir, now is community-wide. For the past two years they have earned highest marks in the Southeastern Manitoba Music Festival.

MAJOR BARBARA

by Bernard Shaw

In the Salvation Army, Major Barbara labours to save the souls of the poor and the ignorant.
But her faith is really put to the test
by wealth and power—in the person of her own father.

Wednesday, January 8 at 9:30 p.m. — CBC-TV

Frances Hyland, left, stars. At right is Jay Shannon.
